Poly(vinyl chloride) and Acrylic Rubber were blended for the ratio of 60:40 by weight and the mechanical and rheological (processability) properties of the blend were investigated as a function of compounding temperature in a twin screw extrudate. It was found in the work that the temperature of 140°C gave the most optimum properties of the blend.